Ori Preuss (Ph.D. Latin American History, University of Miami, 2005), is Senior Lecturer at the Department of History in Tel Aviv University.

He is the author of Bridging the Island: Brazilians’ Views of Spanish America and Themselves, 1865–1912 (Iberoamericana, 2011), and of Transnational South American: Experiences, Ideas and Identities (Routledge, 2016), as well as articles and book chapters published in Latin America, Europe, and the United States.

He is also co-editor of Estudios Interdisciplinarios de América Latina, Tel Aviv University’s journal of Latin American Studies, and editor and translator of Latin American literature for Israeli publishing houses. He has translated into Hebrew works by Ricardo Piglia, Ernesto Che Guevara, and Jorge Luis Borges, among others. His research concentrates on ideas and identities in nineteenth century Latin America from the Histoire Croisée perspective, with a special focus on Brazil, and on transnational practices such as diplomacy, travel, intellectual exchange, intertextuality, and translation. He is currently working on a new book project tentatively titled “Repertorio Americano: Remapping Latin American Intellectual Life, 1820s-1920s.” The project explores the trans-Latin American careers of several intellectuals from Argentina, Brazil, and Uruguay, reinterpreting them as regional rather than national figures.

Publications:

